HISTORY OF SCIENCE INSTITUTE

A Summer Institute in the History of Science was held at the University of Tennessee from June 6 through July 1, 1960. This was made possible through the financial assistance of the National Science Foundation. The 40 participants were teachers of science in colleges and universities of the Southeast and other parts of the United States.

The Institute was ably directed by Dr. George K. Schweitzer, Associate Professor of Chemistry, with the assistance of Dr. Roger Rusk, Associate Professor of Physics, University of Tennessee.

The Institute consisted of two hours of lectures each morning by Dr. Duane H. D. Roller, Associate Professor of the History of Science, University of Oklahoma. Dr. Roller traced the development of scientific ideas from antiquity to the present, correlating the growth of science with political, religious and cultural movements. These lectures were informative, interesting and very stimulating. The required textbook was "Main Currents of Scientific Thought" by Stephen F. Mason (Abelard-Schuman Co., New York).

In addition, there were seminars on Monday and Wednesday afternoons in Biology, Chemistry, Physics and Geology. Each Thursday afternoon and evening a special lecture was given by a guest lecturer who was outstanding in some branch of the history of science.

A room in the University Library was reserved for the Institute; all of the Library books and periodicals dealing with the history of science were placed here and participants could go to this room and read at any time.
